Message From the Director

SAMHSA's Center for Substance Abuse Prevention (CSAP) applies the latest public health information and technology to its programs and products. CSAP's Teen Drinking Prevention Program aims to prevent underage drinking. The program uses innovative social marketing techniques to provide local communities with the knowledge and materials to help them create their own successful grassroots-level prevention programs.

The CSAP Teen Drinking Prevention Program is based on innovative public health techniques and has four objectives:

- Raising public awareness of the underage drinking crisis.
- Changing community norms that encourage underage drinking.
- Creating community-specific prevention messages and materials.
- Ensuring that special events in a community encourage healthy lifestyle choices.

The products of this prevention program are designed for use by many people and groups, including prevention program leaders, the media, enforcement officials, event organizers, and youth themselves, within any community. This guide describes each product as well as its audience and gives suggestions for its use.

My thanks in advance for your participation.

Elaine M. Johnson, Ph.D.
Director, Center for Substance Abuse Prevention
Substance Abuse and Mental Health Services Administration

Community Action Guide

The Community Action Guide is a comprehensive how-to manual for those creating a prevention program at the community level. It provides a chapter-by-chapter overview of each step for building a communitywide prevention program, from assessing the community's prevention needs to recruiting program partners, interacting with the news media, and evaluating the program.
